THE most remarkable hotel in the world is in California, on the road between Santa Cruz and San Jose. It is a well-known fact that California possesses the largest trees in the world; and a shrewd Yankee hotel-keeper has conceived the idea of using a group of these mammoths, thus saving himself the cost of building or rent. The hollow trunk of one tree, whose circumference is about twenty-two yards, is arranged as a reception-room, and the surrounding garden, sheltered by a thick roof of overhanging branches, serves as dining-room and smoking-room. A number of other smaller hollow trunks make comfortable bedrooms, furnished in the most approved style; and some trees at a little distance are occupied by the hotel staff.

small silk flask, holding some form of alcohol, occupies a modest place in a traveler's pocket, and of course he must have due receptacles for his cigars, his keys, his handkerchief, and, if he be well stricken in the vale of years, a pair of spectacles. But the most competent and long-experienced coat artist who knows how these pockets shall be placed and what shall be their exact breadth and depth. Thus to the practised sartorial eye a breast-pocket may really appear "ridiculous." It may be the eighth of an inch too high, too low, too narrow or too broad. It may be "too straight in the fore part," or just a hair's breadth too much askew for symmetry. And yet, in the hands of a really great and estimable artists in coats can not settle their estimable little difference without bringing the refinements of their craft into the law courts.

song originated in a cry produced by bodily contortion. This cry was developed by use in times of danger. It thus became a warning-note that was elaborated into a call-note. This note was repeated by males in varied tone and pitch, and several influences tended to make it a reproduction of surrounding persistent sounds. The call-notes were repeated by the males to the females, and in this manner arbitrary phrases were constructed. Further efforts on the part of the males induced greater variety, which took the form of imitation of other sounds."

A PUEBLO CHURCH.

The Acomas and How They Worship the God of the Christians.

Like the people of all the other New Mexican Pueblo tribes, the Acomas have their annual festivals, the origin of which is lost in the mystery of the prehistoric ages. The Catholic priests, writes Clarence Pullen in Harper's Weekly, put all the Christian veneration possible over the essential heathenism of the ceremonials, and under their influence these celebrations occur usually on or near some saint's day. Conspicuous among these jubiliations is the harvest festival, when, with games and dances, the people rejoice over the ripening of the fruits of the earth. After the performance of secret rites within the church, to which ceremonies no one not a member of the tribe is admitted, the maskers, musicians and others, all dressed in paint, ribbons and brass ornaments, stream forth into the open square before the village, where, with the peculiar stamping step attending all Indian performances of the kind, are continued the processions and dances, to the music of rude fifes, drums and gong-playing. In some of their dances the dancers are attired in complete suits of buckskin, adorned with fringes, buttons, beads, feathers and ribbons, completely covering the face and head, surmounted with horns, and having only small slits for sight and breathing.

The Pueblos, a provident folk who believe in intrusting themselves with all the supernatural powers, do not neglect on these occasions to visit the church to pay due observance to the Christian God and lesser divinities. The church, a fine old structure of adobe, was rebuilt in 1702, after it had been dismantled in the Indian revolt of 1680. It is a massive edifice one hundred and fifty feet long, forty feet wide and forty feet high, with walls seven feet thick, standing fronted by an extensive and ancient burial ground, on the southern bank of the mesa. The sand for this cemetery was brought up from the foot of the bluff and placed in a depression at this point—an operation which, according to priestly tradition, occupied forty years. The huge buttresses, one at each front corner of the church, are capped above the roof by rude bellies in which swing two bells, which Indian tradition asserts to be the gift of the Queen of Spain at some period in the eighteenth century. One of these bells bears the inscription: "San Pedro, A. D. 1710." It is a wonder how these heavy bells and the great pine beams, forty feet long and of proportionate thickness, that cross the body of the church, were ever brought to the top of the mesa.

Adjoining the church are the ruins of the old Franciscan mission of San Estan de Acoma, established, says the eminent archaeologist and historian Prof. Ad. H. Baudelier, by Fray Juan Ramirez not long after the year 1628, he naming the place after St. Sebastian on account of its rocky sides and the large number of pebbles accumulated via and about it. Fray Lucas Maldonado, from Tribuena, Mexico, also a Franciscan. In fact, up to the uprising of the Indians of New Mexico under Pope and Cattle in 1680, the Franciscan order controlled all the missions among the Pueblos. On August 10, 1680, twenty-one Franciscan friars were murdered in various parts of New Mexico, and among them Fray Maldonado, of Acoma. After the reconquest of the province, twelve years later, by the Spaniards under Diego de Vargas, there were for several years occasional disturbances and bloodshed, but by the beginning of the eighteenth century the province had become tranquillized, and the Pueblo Indians and the Spaniards had adjusted their requirements so as to get along together without a great amount of friction.

It is a strange and picturesque sight when within the thick walls of the old church, dimly lighted by deep windows, the perforated, in which sheets of mica, or goss (transparent gypsum) serve for glass, the Indians, in the same fashion of dress which their ancestors wore when they built fires to the sun in ancient days—some wrapped in Navajo blankets, with broad black and white stripes, and red diamond figures in the center—pass to and from the altar, with its bright but impressive decorations. The church interior is decorated with two valuable pictures, the "Virgin and Child," and the "St. Joseph," which were brought from Spain more than two hundred years ago. The ceiling is rudely frescoed in representation of the sun, moon and stars, the work, in the beginning of the present century, of an artist priest, whose name is somewhere inscribed beneath the dust that for generations has been settling upon this labor of love and devotion.

Second hand stores taken in exchange for new ones at J. E. Aylsworth's next door to W. Green's sale stables, Rosser Avenue.

Two excursions will leave here on the civic holiday, the Church of England Sunday school going to Wawanosis and the Methodist Church to Souris.

Mrs. John Murray and Mrs. John Dickenson left last Saturday morning for their old home in King's county, New Brunswick, to spend the summer.

Parties in need of New Cook Stoves would do well to call and examine the large stock at J. E. Aylsworth's between 5th and 6th streets Rosser Avenue.

Quite a number of the Salvation Army went up to Rapid City on Friday last and held grand meetings. Capt. Loeche, who has taken charge of this corps, was in charge.

Dr. S. M. Fraser, who has been at some of the old country medical institutions taking special instruction, returned on Monday last, looking exceedingly well. He will doubtless locate in the city.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Rodrick, who have been visiting friends at the coalfields, Assa, have returned and give a very favorable account of the country and the state of the crops.

Mr. Leather carries with him the good wishes of many friends, and we hope that he may prosper wherever he goes.

Those of our citizens acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Story were shocked on Friday morning as they seldom are, to hear of the death of the latter suddenly by the stroke of apoplexy. The lady was in her usual health during the day, and at 2 a.m. she was a corpse, showing in absolute ignorance of the uncertainty of life. The deceased was a general favorite with all her acquaintances—cheerful, kind and generous to a pre-eminent degree. As a neighbor she will long be missed by all her acquaintances for her goodness of heart and willing disposition. Cut down in the prime of life, she being but in her thirty eighth year, her husband has lost an affectionate wife and her four small children a most affectionate mother. Her remains were interred in the cemetery on Sunday, followed by a large concourse of lamenting friends and acquaintances.

Don't forget to call at J. E. Aylsworth's for cheap Furniture and Stoves, one door west of C. Ryan's Paint shop between 5th and 6th sts. Rosser Avenue.

Mr. Anson Grundy, of the firm of W. Grundy & Co., Winnipeg, was in the city on Friday looking after the interests of the firm at this place. He reports business very good, and that a number of organs and pianos have lately been sold in the district.

On Tuesday evening, as Mr. D. R. Taylor was driving along near Chatter, the horse became frightened and ran away, upset the rig, throwing him out, breaking his arm and leg, and shaking him up considerably. We hope he is not seriously hurt, and that he may soon recover.

The members of the Brandon intermediate lacrosse team went up to Rapid City last Friday and crossed sticks with the team of that place. The game resulted in favor of Brandon by a score of three to one, although the Rapid City boys gave them all they could do.

Chicago to Liverpool.

A STEAMSHIP LINE BEING ORGANIZED FOR DIRECT TRANSPORTATION BY LAKE AND OCEAN.

New York, July 9.—The Herald's Chicago special says: Another syndicate of British capitalists has turned its attention to a new field for profitable investments and has selected this city as the base of operations. The great lakes are to be used for the establishment of a direct and continuous water communication between Chicago and the sea ports of Great Britain. The vessels to be employed in this service will be of such a tonnage as to pass through the Canadian lock canals in safety and yet be thoroughly fitted for ocean travel. The proposed line will result in a great saving of freight, and would be especially attractive to invalid passengers who would otherwise be compelled to travel a thousand miles by land to the Atlantic seaboard. The representative of the company, J. D. Fairfax, of London, who is at the Leland hotel, admits that he is here to organize the Chicago terminus. The corporation will be known as the "Atlantic and Great Lakes Navigation and Trading Co. (limited)." It will build and operate its own vessels, for which purpose $5,000,000 has been subscribed. Already contracts have been made with the large importers of Chicago, Milwaukee and Detroit, Mr. Fairfax says, by which the merchants have agreed to ship and to instruct their foreign agents to ship all their goods via this line.
